

REL 113: Writing About Values and Virtues

Individuals who like to think about the application of values and virtues to life will be challenged to express themselves in creative and effective ways through writing. This Writing Intensive (WI) course seeks to improve the academic and practical writing skills of enrolled students. All Religion and Philosophy majors are required to take this class at the earliest opportunity. All other students who would like assistance to discuss and write about important issues in life are encouraged to enroll. Does NOT satisfy Core Curriculum Requirements for a Religion (REL) course.
