

SCI 114: Scientific Ethics

Application of scientific principles and scientific method to problems and decisions confronting society. Students will study major ethical and moral issues and their application in science. Students will study the historical development and perspectives of science. Designed for the non-major. Three lecture hours per week.

Credits: Credits 3

Semester Offered:

Semester Offered

Offered every semester.