

SWK 200: Human Behavior in the Social Environment

The study of human development and change over the life span using a multidimensional theoretical framework: biophysical, psychological, and sociological. The students will learn how to use this framework to assess social functioning.

Credits: Credits 3

Notes:

Notes

Cross-listed with PSY 230.

Prerequisites:

Prerequisite Courses

SWK 101

Semester Offered:

Semester Offered

Offered spring semester, odd-numbered years.