

SCM 230: Supply Chain in Action

In this online course, students learn about the application of supply chain systems to vital real-world functions. This course examines why supply chain management is vitally important, how it intersects with business, national and global interest, and how supply chains literally save the world. This online class has optional live sessions . (Prerequisites: None)

Credits: Credits 3

Semester Offered:

Semester Offered

Offered at department discretion