

BIO 342: Immunology

Study of Immunological mechanisms of the vertebrate body to include antigen structure and types, effectors of the immune response, and control of the immune response. Immunodiagnostics, immunity to infectious agents and cancer, and disorders of the immune system will be addressed. Three lecture and three laboratory hours per week.

Credits: Credits 4

Prerequisites:

Prerequisite Courses

BIO 212

Semester Offered:

Semester Offered

Offered at departmental discretion.