

COL 300 : Learning Leadership

This course will explore basic theories and concepts of leadership and personal values. Participants will identify personal leadership styles and skills and learn how to adapt and use them effectively in various life situations. This course is highly interactive and experiential in nature. Participants will be required to participate in many varied exercises.

Credits 1

Semester Offered

Offered at departmental discretion.