

HIS 365: Environmental History

This interdisciplinary course examines the history of the co-evolution of human and non-human ecosystems in order to provide insights into how human beings can better navigate their relationship with the biological world around them today.

Credits: Credits 3

Semester Offered:

Semester Offered

Offered at departmental discretion.